- > Abstract: The aim of integrating lean manufacturing and parameter
- > design is to minimize seven wastes in non-value added of traditional
- > waste (over production, waiting, motion, transportation, inventory,
- > over processing, and defects) in the clean water production.
- > Information obtained from each waste is the input for the parameter
- > design process on mixing process. The result of interaction between
- > those seven types of waste in the lean production of clean water
- > finds out that the waste of over processing is the most influential
- > input in the parameter design of Taguchi method. In the process of
