Recommendation: Revisions Required

Have you reviewed (and rejected) this article before? If Yes, you need to decline this peer review and let the editors know.

No

Title and abstract representing the soul of the study and are easy to follow for readers?

Comment:

1. Title confusing- Is it Millennial Mom's Perception or Father's Perception? Is it Relation or looking at the impacts?
2. What is the benefit? Not clear
3. The findings of this study provide new evidence . What evidence?

Is the Introduction easy to follow for the readers? Does it cite the LATEST and RELEVANT references of the subject? Does it provide a hypothesis or aim of the study?

It cited latest references but some not relevant with the study. Is it Self Disclosure (SNS) or Emotional Self Disclosure (ESD)

Literature analysis is well structured and presenting the latest discussion on the subject?

Literature analysis is not well structured.

Does the Methods section provide enough details for the general reader to repeat the experiments?

Methods applied properly.

Does the Results section give the right amount of detail to understand the method and applied experiments?

Result of experiment can be understand but author not focus what is this study about.

Do the Results refer to the figures in a logical order? Do the numbers in the tables add up correctly? Are any figures/tables mislabeled or unclear?

Results can be understand. Figure 2, 3, 4 and 5 can't be detect.

Did the authors perform all the logical analyses on collected data? Did they include the proper controls?

Analysis data can be understand but some missing in figures.

Does the Discussion address the main findings, and does it give proper recognition to similar work in this field?

The discussion not clear and not focus.

In general, is the paper easy to follow and does it have a logical flow? Are there any language issues?

There are minor language issues but there is no logical flow. Can't get the problem statement for this study.

Did the authors make all their data (e.g. sequence reads, code, questionnaires used) available for the readers?
