Review 1:
Authors used only 12 samples which clearly is not statistically significant. Some justification should be given on this,

Review 2:
The manuscript should be corrected by removing unnecessary repetitions of data (the same data in Tables and in Figures) and detailed description of sites and sampling points should be added.

Summary, line 26 - why Zn is two times
Map with locations of sampling points needed
In how many repetitions analyses were conducted?
Line 107- Why division into site A and B was performed – what was the difference between these two sites? Again map with marked Site A and B needed. Please explain shortly this Rahman's method Table 1. – the same number of decimals should be maintained.
Figures 1 – 3 – These are the same data as in Table 1, remove these Figures – they are incorrect, as far as I understand there isn't any connection between f.ex. point „0” in Site A and B, so it is inappropriate to show them as one bar.
What is the difference between Table 2 and Figure 4? They both show Igeo but the results are different.
And again this is unnecessary repetitions.

I suggest to expand description of both sites and sampling points and try to explain where such big differences in specific locations come from (f.ex. in site A1). Detailed description of the way of taking samples is needed.
